

QUESTION 33 OF 52: NOT ANSWERED

The central problem that Stanton describes in the passage is that women have been denied equal educational opportunities, which has kept them from reaching their potential.

Stanton does not focus on women's lack of equal educational opportunities or inability to hold political positions.

prevented from exerting their positive influence on men, which has led to societal breakdown.

Stanton argues that men make all the decisions in "the church, the state, and the home." This absolute power has led to a disorganized society, a "fragmentary condition of everything." Stanton confirms this claim when she states that society needs women to "lift man up into the higher realms of thought and action."

prevented from voting, which has resulted in poor candidates winning important elections.

Although Stanton implies women are not allowed to vote, she never mentions that "poor candidates" are winning elections.

blocked by men from serving as legislators, which has allowed the creation of unjust laws.

Stanton does not focus on women's lack of equal educational opportunities or inability to hold political positions.
