

QUESTION 3 OF 52: NOT ANSWERED

During the course of the first paragraph, the narrator's focus shifts from recollection of past confidence to acknowledgment of present self-doubt.

A

The first paragraph does not focus on the narrator's self-doubt.

B

reflection on his expectations of life as a tradesman to his desire for another job.

The first paragraph does not focus on his expectations of life as a tradesman.

C

generalization about job dissatisfaction to the specifics of his own situation.

The first paragraph shifts from a general discussion of how people deal with choosing an occupation they later regret to the narrator's description of his own dissatisfaction with his occupation.

D

evaluation of factors making him unhappy to identification of alternatives.

The first paragraph does not focus on his identification of alternatives to his current occupation.