

QUESTION 27 OF 44: NOT ANSWERED

A NO CHANGE

It contains punctuation that unnecessarily separates the study from its findings—that is, separates the verb from its object.

B suggests— that

It contains punctuation that unnecessarily separates the study from its findings—that is, separates the verb from its object.

C suggests, “that

It contains punctuation that unnecessarily separates the study from its findings—that is, separates the verb from its object.

D suggests that

It offers the verb “suggests” followed directly by its object, a that-clause, without interruption.
