

QUESTION 42 OF 52: NOT ANSWERED

The sixth paragraph (lines 59–69) is primarily concerned with establishing a contrast between

A men and women.

The sixth paragraph does not primarily establish a contrast between men and women.

B the spiritual world and the material world.

The sixth paragraph does not primarily establish a contrast between the spiritual and material worlds.

C bad men and good men.

Although Stanton argues that not “all men are hard, selfish, and brutal,” she does not discuss what constitutes a “good” man.

D men and masculine traits.

In the sixth paragraph, Stanton differentiates between men and masculine traits. Stanton argues that masculine traits or “characteristics,” such as a “love of acquisition and conquest,” serve to “subjugate one man to another.” Stanton is suggesting that some masculine traits position men within certain power structures.